

DAVID K. FRAM, Esq.

David K. Fram, Esq., is Director of ADA Services for the National Employment Law Institute. In this position, he conducts seminars, workshops, and in-house training on the ADA. He also provides guidance, as well as expert witness services, during administrative proceedings and litigation.

From 1991-1996, Mr. Fram was a Policy Attorney in the EEOC's Office of Legal Counsel. Before this, Mr. Fram was an employment attorney with Hogan & Hartson, a law firm in Washington, D.C. Mr. Fram has spoken extensively around the country concerning ADA and EEO issues, including testifying to Congress about the ADA and proposed changes to the law. He has trained tens of thousands of HR professionals, attorneys, and others representing manufacturers, federal, state and local governments, colleges and universities, hospitals and health service providers, non-profits, law firms and bar associations, among others. He also has trained hundreds of EEOC investigators and EEOC attorneys who analyze and resolve ADA claims. Mr. Fram has written on a variety of employment issues. Recent ADA books and articles include:

· Resolving ADA Workplace Questions: How Courts and Agencies are Dealing with Employment Issues (NELI; Updated every six months)

· The Human Resource Guide to Answering ADA Workplace Questions: Checklists and Practical Hints for Human Resources Personnel (NELI; 10th Edition 2017)

· Articles: "Q&A: Latest Developments on Determining Essential Functions" (Kate Klenner, BNA 5/16); "Handling Worker Requests for an Irritant-free Workplace Under ADA," ADA Compliance Guide (Thompson: 5/14)(co-authored); "Insights on Attendance and Leave Under the ADA," HR Compliance Expert (Thompson: 8/13); ADA Update: The Emerging Definition of 'Disability,'" Corporate Counsel's Guide to the ADA (BLI: 11/05); "Lessons in Effectively Communicating to Avoid ADA Lawsuits," ADA Compliance Guide (Thompson: 5/04); "Recognizing Covered Long-Term Impairments," ADA Compliance Guide (Thompson: 1/04); "Understanding the ADA's Reassignment Obligation," Employment Law Strategist (7/03); ADA Update: The Emerging Definition of 'Disability,'" Corporate Counsel's Guide to the ADA (BLI: 2/03); "Employers' Qualification Standards Must Comport with ADA," ADA Compliance Guide (Thompson: 3/02); "Plausible Explanations for Inconsistent Statements," ADA Compliance Guide (Thompson: 8/01); "Aftermath of Sutton Analyzed," ADA Compliance Guide (Thompson: 1/01); "Accommodating Disabled Employees Through Reassignment," ADA Compliance Guide (Thompson: 9/99); "Responding Effectively to Workers' Accommodation Requests," ADA Compliance Guide (Thompson: 12/98); "Five Keys to the Disabilities Act," The New York Times (8/16/98); "Determining Disabilities: When is a Condition 'Substantially Limiting'?", LRP Publication's Federal EEO Advisor (7/98); "Determining Disability: With or Without Medication," Employment Law Strategist (3/98); "What Employers Should Know About the ADA," The Wall Street Journal (9/16/96); "Key Evidence on Whether Someone is 'Qualified' Under the ADA," BNA's Employment Discrimination Report (7/17/96); "The ADA and Reasonable Accommodation: Some Common Employer Errors," BNA's Employment Discrimination Report (6/7/95); "The ADA and Employees Who Break Conduct Rules," BNA's Employment Discrimination Report (9/21/94); "The FMLA and the ADA," (co-authored with P. Mastroianni), ABA's The Labor Lawyer (1993); "Examining the Relationship Between Employers and Health Professionals Under the ADA," CCH's Labor Law Journal (5/93).

As a professional speaker, Mr. Fram has been honored with the highest distinction by the National Speakers Association, an association of the nation's premier speakers. His book, Raising the Bar: How to Give Outstanding Legal Presentations (2019), provides tips and techniques for lawyers preparing and delivering public presentations.

Mr. Fram received his B.A. degree (summa cum laude) from the University of Maryland. He received his J.D. degree, cum laude from The Cornell Law School, where he was an editor of The Cornell Law Review.